

Lab 7: Website Publishing

Due date: Oct 7, 2023, 4:00 am

Overview

In this lab, you will publish a website on a server.

Task

Publish the Chapter 9 solution to the Pacific Trails Resort case study to the Internet using your student account. See Web Publishing for Students and the resource section on the course website for instructions on how to publish a website on UWG's student server. Alternatively, you may use another website host. However, I cannot provide any help if you have problems publishing to the Internet if you decide to use a different service.

Since the repository is used as a tool in the development process, it should not be published. That is, do not include the folder `.git` in your published website.

Submission

You will need to submit the URL of your published page. To do so, go to the submission page for this assignment on the course website. You will be prompted with a text box instead of a file-upload page. Enter the URL of your published page in the textbox. Make sure that there is no typo in the URL!

Grading

A successfully published site receives 10 points. Points are subtracted as follows:

- For each page that is not displayed: -3 points
- For each image that is not displayed: -1 point
- For each incorrect/broken link: -1 point
- The style sheet has not been applied: -3 points
